Dear Nathan fans:

As the issue of Bisphenol-A continues to raise questions with consumers and health officials regarding its safety, I wanted to take this opportunity to reaffirm the safety and make-up of our line of our stainless steel bottles.

Introduced in 2008, our line of stainless steel bottles are 100 percent BPA-free, and made of stainless steel 304, more commonly known as 18/8 or food grade stainless steel. When developing our line of reusable bottles, we wanted to ensure we used a material that was safe for consumers, was 100 percent recyclable, was durable enough to use over and over again, and, unlike aluminum, did not require a lining to protect against leaching. We chose stainless steel because in addition to meeting all of these requirements, was a material that we could confirm was 100 percent BPA-free.

We at Nathan Performance Gear™ reiterate one of our commitments to the consumer, and that is to provide accurate and timely information regarding all of our products. Should you have additional comments or questions regarding our stainless steel bottles, I encourage you to contact our customer service department at 800-523-2844.

Regardless of your personal stance on Bisphenol-A or different bottle brands, we encourage all consumers to ditch disposable bottles in favor of a reusable bottle that suites you and your lifestyle. In doing so, you can cut down on the some 38 billion disposable water bottles that end up in landfills each year.

Thank you.
